Third National Conference Improving Mental Health Support for Asylum Seekers & Refugees

Providing Emotional First Aid for Refugees

Thursday 7 December 2017 Manchester Conference Centre, Manchester

We are pleased to announce the Third National Summit to focus on improving Mental Health Support for Asylum Seekers and Refugees including providing Emotional First Aid for Refugees.

“The failure to appreciate the effect on asylum seekers and refugees of trauma, whether the result of experiences in their home countries, while on their journeys to exile or in the countries where they have sought protection and safety, also has a major, but unrecognised, impact on the functioning of the asylum system, and the 28 day move-on deadline for newly granted refugees militates against effective integration by making destitution a likely outcome, thereby exacerbating refugees’ uncertainty and anxiety. Our response must be to develop the kind of specialist provision that we would wish to see mainstreamed and use the evidence generated by those services to illustrate and demonstrate to Government that in the case of mental health support, the provision of appropriate and accessible services as an integral element of the asylum and refugee system in the UK is in its interest as well as that of refugees.” Maurice Wren, Chief Executive, The Refugee Council, May 2017
