“The Department of Health and Social Care has recently reiterated its commitment to improvement in the quality of end-of-life care and emphasised the importance of all patients having rapid access to medication.”

Kathy Latham, Brian Nyatanga

“It is essential that decisions around end of life care remain patient-centred and based on a person’s individual needs, and that we do not adopt a blanket ‘one size fits all’ approach in our rush to manage patients’ symptoms.”

Care Quality Commission July 2020

“Commonly prescribed drugs such as opioids, anti-emetics, anti-secretory drugs, antipsychotic agents and mouth care products can significantly enhance the role of the CNS in palliative care and the support and care provided for our dying patients.”

Non-medical Prescribing in Palliative and End-of-Life Care (EOLC), Emma Sweeney

“There are unacceptable variations in aspects of palliative and end of life care such as access to pain control, related to different care settings”

Ambitions for Palliative and End of Life Care: A national framework for local action 2015-2020

“People have watched their loved ones dying in pain or in an agitated state because their symptoms have been ineffectively or poorly managed... These cases show how pain, agitation and other distressing symptoms were not adequately controlled as people neared the end of their lives... In many cases, this distress could have been avoided.”

PHSO

“NMP in a palliative care context may be one mechanism through which people can be supported to remain at home with well controlled symptoms at the end of life. For example, patients with cancer typically spend 65-80% of their last 6 months of life at home and adequate pain control is often hindered by poor access to effective timely analgesia. These patients often have multiple, rapidly changing symptoms requiring highly specialist management”

Non-Medical Prescribing in Palliative Care: A Regional Survey, Dr Lucy Ziegler University of Leeds

This important national conference provides an essential update for current and aspiring non medical prescribers on prescribing at the end of life. It is widely recognized that pain and symptom control at the end of life is not always optimal, the development of non medical prescribing has a key role in improving pain and symptom control for patients at the end of life. The conference, which includes national updates, extended in depth sessions and case studies will focus on developing your skills and competence as a non medical prescriber in end of life care

The conference will also update non medical prescribers in the issues around prescribing controlled drugs. The Care Quality Commission stated in July 2020 that “prescribing by non-medical prescribers increased in 2019, with the most significant increase from pharmacist prescribing, which increased by 80% over the previous year. Nurse prescribing also increased by 32%.”

This conference will enable you to:

- Network with colleagues who are working to improving nurse prescribing in end of life care
- Learn from outstanding practice in end of life care prescribing
- Reflect on best practice in prescribing at the end of life for Covid-19 patients
- Understand how to effectively develop, demonstrate and maintain continued competence in prescribing for patients at the end of life
- Reflect on lessons from experts in nurse prescribing for specific case study areas with in depth interactive sessions focusing on Nurse Prescribing for Pain, Nurse Prescribing in community settings, Controlled drugs and use of drugs beyond the product licence, The use of Syringe Drivers and Syringe Driver combinations, Best practice in prescribing for symptom control at the end of life, Nurse prescribing within a hospice setting, Anticipatory prescribing and Prescribing within End of Life Care Clinics
- Identify key strategies for improving nurse prescribing practice at the end of life
- Develop your role and confidence as a nurse prescriber
- Self assess, reflect and expand your skills in prescribing practice whilst understanding your limits of practice

100% of delegates attending the last event on this subject would recommend the conference to a colleague and stated that attending the conference today will ultimately have a positive impact on patient experience and outcomes
