

Ofrah Muflahi
Professional Lead
Royal College of Nursing

Ofrah's passion for nursing started at the age of fourteen when she noted the care being provided by nursing staff who looked after her unwell mother. Ofrah has more than 20+ years' experience working in senior management, acute, community and the charity sector and is a highly competent nurse with experience in paediatrics, quality governance, project management and quality improvement and was the only Mary Seacole Leadership Award winner in 2008. Ofrah is currently the Professional Lead for Nursing Support Workers and Long-Term Conditions at the Royal College of Nursing and is passionate about her role in order to deliver excellent care, ethical leadership and innovation. She has an MSc in Healthcare Management and Policy from the University of Birmingham.
