In March 2018 NHS Improvement stated:

“Investigations must be led by trained investigators with the support of an appropriately resourced investigation team”

“while RCA is widely used and considered to be the national systems-based investigation method, it is often not understood or appropriately adopted in local investigations. The RCA method is sometimes cited as the cause of investigation flaws, but review of such published critiques [13] suggests problems with implementation rather than fundamental flaws in the RCA methodology” The future of NHS patient safety investigations. Proposed principles for the revised Serious Incident Framework

This interactive and practical course (which can be run over 1 or 2 days) will provide delegates with a systems based methodology. You will be taught how to investigate incidents from the initial scoping and information gathering, data organisation and analysis through to production of the final report. Delegates will be provided with an electronic toolkit after the training (containing a recommended policy insert, report, statement and timeline templates) to help put our RCA methodology into practice.

Our trainers are highly-rated healthcare lawyers with extensive experience of independent incident investigations.

Day 1

This day will focus on the RCA methodology; information gathering, involving patients, families and carers, data organisation, analytical skills, drafting actions, recommendations and observations.

Day 2

This day will focus on the skills of statement writing and interviewing techniques. Delegates will undertake a mock investigation from start to finish, submitting their reports and receiving feedback.

“Excellent training, highly relevant to my role, will be working this way in the future”

“Excellent presenter, kept me involved and interested throughout”

“Fantastic course tutor, very knowledgeable and interesting”

“Training covered all relevant areas to enable a complete and thorough RCA report”

“Excellent training great engagement from trainer and trainees”

“Well timed, presented and informative, gave clarity to subject and went above expectation”

“Excellent training from an experienced professional”
