Wednesday 9 December 2015 ICO Conference Centre, London

All NHS funded care services are expected to have digital and interoperable systems that remove the limitations of paper records and slow bureaucratic systems by 2020." 13th November 2014, Department of Health

Following NHS England's commitment to a paperless NHS, this one day conference focuses on a practical guide to delivering intelligent electronic document management in your organisation. The delivery of clinical care is no longer from a single place with a single record location but from multiple sites (including the patients own home) and the electronic record needs to be available in these multiple sites to improve patient care and aid clinical decision making in real time.

The conference outlines a number of different strategies for the implementation of EDM and discusses key issues including the legal framework and information governance. This will be complemented by practical case studies from NHS Trusts that have implemented Electronic Document Management in practice including learning from Dr Jack Barber, Chief Clinical Information Officer at Kings Hospital NHS Foundation Trust about how they are moving towards an eHospital.

"Having access to the right information at the right time enables excellence. It helps professionals document handovers accurately and makes it easier to share information quickly across multi-disciplinary teams and with other providers... Access to accurate, timely and comprehensive information can transform the quality and efficiency of healthcare through improved clinical workflows, increased care optimisation and greater patient involvement. It is increasingly the hallmark of a modern, high quality healthcare system.." The Integrated Digital Care Fund: Achieving Integrated Health and Care Records

"Implementing Electronic Document Management Solutions is a challenge, a major project and a substantial change to the way care is delivered but it is achievable, and others have achieved it and gained many benefits" Dr Masood Nazir Clinical Informatics Advisor NHS England

100% of delegates at our previous conference on this subject would recommend it to a colleague.
