Delivering a 7 Day Imaging Service

Improving Patient Care, Outcomes and Productivity

Friday 8 November 2013   ICO Conference Centre London

“NHS England have identified moving to a 7 day service as a priority” Simon Bennett NHS England 24th April 2013

“The NHS will move towards routine services being available 7 days a week. This is essential to offer a much more patient-focused service and also offers the opportunity to improve clinical outcomes and reduce costs”

Everyone Counts, Planning for Patients 2013/14
NHS England 2013

This practical conference focuses on delivering a 7 day imaging service, an essential component of the national move towards NHS services 7 Days a week.

“Diagnostic services, including imaging, are central to all secondary care and a significant proportion of primary care, yet expensive plant lies underutilised on Saturdays and Sundays while patients wait, creating inconvenience and unnecessary anxiety. Inefficient weekend diagnostic services also complicate the lives of general practitioners who are seeking answers for their patients and the lives of hospital staff who have to explain that nothing can happen for a couple of days, while patients wait on the wards for the weekend to pass before decisions are made”

Sir Bruce Keogh, NHS Medical Director, January 2012

This conference will take you through a step by step guide to implementing a 7 day service in your imaging department including developing a business case, employment and contract law, service management, changing the culture, ensuring informatics support, collaborative working and moving forward: learning from those who have successfully implemented 7 day working in imaging in practice.
